SERVICES AND ANTHEMS.

WINTER

Repeated trials have shown that early sown winter wheat is superior to spring sown. The results have been confirmed by this year's experience.

Winter wheat ripens earlier, gives a heavier yield and a better quality of grain. During the early autumn the soil has still sufficient heat to ensure germination and the crop gets well brairded before winter. It is consequently able to withstand unfavourable weather

Sowing should be commenced as early as possible in October, and may be continued until the middle of November. If impracticable during this period sowing should be deferred until February.

Farmers having any doubt as to the quality of the seed they have saved should have it tested before sow-ing. With purchased seed they are entitled to obtain from the seller, within one month of sale or delivery, particulars as to purity, germination, &c., required by the Testing of Seeds Order, 1918. The supply of these particulars should be insisted upon.

Information as to varieties, manuring, &c., will be found in the Department's Leaflets Nos. 2 (special) and 61, copies of which may be obtained, post free, on application.
